On Monday morning Gus sat down with ABC Action News in Tampa to discuss the pending health care legislation and the need for greater government transparency:

Tampa Bay Congressman, Gus Bilirakis, (R-FL) says he has co-sponsored legislation that would mandate a 72 hour period between the time a bill is finalized until a vote.

"I think there should be a 72 hour waiting period so that it can be posted on the internet, so constituents get an opportunity to read the bill, so that members have an opportunity to read the bill and they should read the bill," Bilirakis told Reporter Kerry Kavanaugh.
