

Gas prices in Tampa Bay have nearly doubled during the past three years, causing unneeded uncertainty during this tough economic time.

Our current energy path is unsustainable – we need to chart a new course forward – but the current Administration's energy plan fails to do that. To combat the rising cost of energy, Gus supports a comprehensive energy plan that develops all of our nation's own resources and moves us away from our dependence on foreign sources of energy.

On Thursday, May 3, Gus stopped by a gas station in Oldsmar to visit with constituents about the effect of high gas prices, and to get their opinions about what should be done to help solve the problem.
